

Sarah & Eric

Dear Birthmother,

There are no words that feel adequate in a moment like this, but we want to try our best to reach you with our hearts and our deepest respect. We don't know what led you here, but what we do know is that your decision is rooted in love and courage that humbles us.

If we are chosen to be the adoptive parents of your child, we want you to know that your love and courage will never be a secret. Your child will grow up knowing they are deeply loved by two families, one who brought them into the world with love, and one who will raise them with that same love every day. We will speak of you with the utmost respect and admiration.

We promise to provide a home full of laughter, stability, and unconditional love. We will honor his or her individuality, nurture their dreams, and always support them as they grow into who they are meant to be. And we will hold in our hearts, always, the part of you that lives in them.

Adoption has been on our hearts as individuals since we were young. We recently found a school project Eric made in 5th grade, stating what he wanted to do when he was older and his response was, adopt a baby! Sarah has been passionate about adoption since she was in middle school, always seeking out opportunities to invest in babies and kids.

We are overjoyed that the time has finally come to pursue this journey.

About Us

About Sarah by Eric

Sarah is truly the heart of our home. She is a woman of deep faith, she is gentle, kind and all around such a fun mom. Watching her live out her calling as a mom has shown me the kind of selfless love and patience that only grows stronger in motherhood. She prays with hope, loves with her whole heart, and meets each day with grace. Our daughters are naturally drawn to her warmth, her laughter, and her calm spirit.

She has always dreamed of being a mother, not just in name, but in the truest, most nurturing sense. I know that she would love and raise your child with devotion, tenderness, and unconditional love.

About Eric by Sarah

Eric is the most incredible dad to our daughters and truly has a heart of gold. He is fully present in every aspect of their lives, from bedtime stories, to school field trips to being the best source of encouragement on the sports field. He has a gift for balancing authority with compassion. He leads our family in faith and steadfastness, while also being the first to call for a dance party or break into a game of tag. Our girls see him as their safe place and their favorite playmate.

Watching Eric as a dad has been the greatest blessing and I know he is the best role model and protector for our children.

How We Met

We met almost 10 years ago at our best friends wedding. Our friends paired us up to walk down the aisle together, we hit it off and three years later it was our turn to tie the knot. Our marriage is incredibly special to the both of us, we actively engage and pursue each other on a daily basis. Our marriage, along with our relationship with Jesus is the foundation of our family.

Our Family

We have two daughters, Oakleigh (4yrs) and Nora (2yrs). They are social, kind and adventurous. We also have a 7 year old Bernedoodle who is goofy and the most gentle giant you will ever meet. Sarah is a labor and delivery nurse at a local hospital and Eric is a teacher and coach at a high school in Baltimore City. We love to be outside, spend time with family and friends, we are involved in our church, and enjoy Baltimore sports. We parent with a thoughtful blend of love consistency and individualized care. We value connecting with our children all the time but especially in times of conflict within the child. We are warm, patient and compassionate.

Family Dynamics

We love to support each other through all of the activities that we participate in as individuals. Sarah enjoys running half marathons. Eric will often sign up for the races too, or he will bring the girls to the race to cheer mom on. Eric is a wrestling coach and we attend nearly every match. We often attend Oakleigh's events at school and look forward to her soccer games in the fall. As a family we are engaged in Nora's developmental activities as she is growing and exploring. We simply love being together.

Our favorite season is the summer. We enjoy going to the beach, swimming in our pool, and crossing off activities on our "summer bucket list."

Our Extended Family

We have a large extended family, residing near and far. Eric's two sisters and parents live locally, while Sarah's family live out of state. We see Eric's family often, enjoying each others company and a shared love for Baltimore sports. Eric's sisters and brother in laws are incredible Aunts and Uncles, always excited to play with Oakleigh and Nora. We have a close relationship with Eric's parents and we are well loved and supported by them. Sarah's parents reside in Ohio and has four sisters and two brothers who live in various states around the country. We cherish our time together because it only happens a few times a year. We also have Grandparents/ Great Grandparents , "Mommom and Poppop." We are blessed to have grown to know and love Mommom and Poppop who have built a legacy of faith for our family.

Holiday Traditions

Holidays are always a special time at our house. We host a Halloween party on the night of trick or treating for our neighbors. We also enjoy the 4th of July, fireworks and parades. Christmas and Easter are the holidays we are most passionate about since they are so influential to our faith. We ensure that our girls know the true meaning behind each of these holidays while embracing all the fun activities that these holidays have to offer.

Celebrations

We love to celebrate birthdays.. We decorate the house with banners, balloons and always have a special day planned together as a family. We look forward to a party with family and friends, which often extends the birthday into a birthday week.

Our Home

We live in a single family home, about 45 minutes from Baltimore. Our neighborhood is easily walkable to the library and many parks. We have neighbor families who have become our best friends. We have three bedrooms, a large family room and a playroom. We have a fenced in yard, space to play in the grass as well as a “sports court” where we often ride bikes, scooters and draw with chalk.

We also have a fenced inground pool that we swim in everyday during the summer. We bought this home with the intention that this would be the “hangout house” for our kids and their friends.
